Select Your Professional Field

York University's Bridging Program for Internationally Educated Professionals (IEPs) works with small and large local businesses, not-for-profits, professional associations and accreditation bodies to help IEPs transition into a position that matches their education, credentials and experience. We attract candidates from over 30 countries and create a comprehensive assessment and a recommended list of courses for each IEP that is tailored to their professional goals and career path.

> makeMORE Advantages

IEPs benefit from an individualized assessment and comprehensive, integrated programming that includes foundation and specialized skills, academic credentials and exposure to current technology and experiential education relevant to the Canadian workplace.

Through internships, consulting projects, volunteer initiatives and professional mentoring, IEPs provide employers and community partners with highly skilled knowledge and fresh global perspectives from emerging markets.
